

Behavior Matrix

Hidden Hills Elementary School, Arizona

Topic: Reducing Behavior Problems

Practice: Modify Environment

Under the guidelines of the Positive Intervention and Support Program (PBIS), staff at Hidden Hills Elementary School have designed a behavior matrix. This matrix divides the school's behavior rules into three categories: rules that aim to promote a safe school environment (e.g., "Walk your skateboards and bikes while on campus"); rules that aim to promote healthy and socially responsible behavior (e.g., "Respect others' personal space and property"); and rules that aim to promote a positive school climate that is based on caring, consideration of others, and respect for others (e.g., "Watch out for the younger kids").

The behavior matrix lists rules by location on school grounds (e.g., in the hallways, in the cafeteria, on the playground) and time of day (e.g., in the morning or at dismissal). The language used in the matrix is consistent with the vocabulary that all school staff use to communicate behavior expectations and to provide feedback to students. Students' use of the same language when keeping the rules or telling peers to follow the rules may be viewed as an indicator of successful implementation.

The contents of the behavior matrix are communicated to students and parents early in the school year through assemblies and through guided practice with classroom teachers (see a related sample material, Passport for Positive Behavior). The staff reminds students about the behavior matrix throughout the school year using colorful posters, feedback, and structured lesson plans. The last page of this sample material includes a lesson plan used at Hidden Hills Elementary to review and re-teach the behavior matrix to students. This lesson plan offers teachers options for classroom activities to review the matrix such as role playing the expectations for each area of the school, creating posters that illustrate behavior expectations, and creating a PowerPoint that could be used to share behavior expectations. Schools can use this matrix as a guide to develop a similar one according to their needs.

Topic for discussion: Week Thirty One: Behavior Matrix Review	·
<ul> <li>Discussion: Using the attached Behavior Matrix, teachers will review expectation one of the following ways:</li> <li>Have each of the students make a poster of one of the categories, so that a 10 areas (including the classroom) are assigned. Hang posters up around the school</li> <li>In small groups, have the student's role play the expected behaviors for each category on the behavior matrix, making sure to assign all 10 areas.</li> <li>As a class, visit each of the sites on the behavior matrix and have the students suggest the appropriate behavior for each site. Use a highlighter to highlight each correct response to show students how well they did in remembering the expectations.</li> <li>Assign students a different area on the behavior matrix. Have them write a creative story about a new student to our school and how they taught the new student the rules for their area.</li> <li>Assign a small group of students each an area on the behavior matrix and have them create a power point presentation on their section. Put all the power points together to show your class, buddy rooms and others.</li> </ul>	all he ch
